

EXHIBIT B

Sean T at RCP
@SeanTrende

...

Been playing around with Texas maps, and it's pretty easy to draw three new R districts, draw two new minority opportunity districts by making 7 and 32 minority-majority, make 23 majority-Trump while keeping ~66% Hispanic and make TX-28 heavily Trump while keeping ~66% Hispanic 1/

10:52 AM · Dec 14, 2020 · Twitter Web App

2 Retweets 2 Quote Tweets 22 Likes

Tweet your reply

Reply

Sean T at RCP  @SeanTrende · Dec 14, 2020
Replying to @SeanTrende

...

While shoring up most of the suburban districts (that flows pretty naturally from making TX7/32 minority-majority). With that said, long term probably makes more sense to draw an Austin-based district, both for political and "oh come on" reasons. 2/

 2

 1

 19

Sean T at RCP  @SeanTrende · Dec 14, 2020

...

Like a 6-way pizzamander of Travis County can be done, but it doesn't mean it should. And given growth in the area, those districts probably get wobbly by the end of the decade. 3/3

 4

 2

 22

